Overview

Supporting financial regulators to develop policies that close the gender gap in financial inclusion; Building the women's leadership pipeline in regulatory organizations.

WHAT IT IS

Policymakers can be game changers for women's financial inclusion yet regulatory bodies face a significant gender gap in representation at senior decision-making levels. Women's World Banking's Leadership and Diversity Program for Regulators is a 16-week leadership development program that equips senior officials from central banks and other regulatory agencies in emerging markets with the skills to create an enabling environment for women's financial inclusion and advance women leaders within their institutions.

WHAT HAPPENS

The program involves a series of interactive live online sessions, individual and group assignments, peer action learning and expert consultation opportunities. Each senior official identifies a policy initiative to advance women's financial inclusion. They also select a high-potential woman leader from within the institution with whom to partner in designing and implementing this initiative. Senior Officials invest in the woman leader's professional growth through career mentorship and sponsorship.

WHY IT'S UNIQUE

As Covid-19 disrupts global economies, with disproportionate negative effects felt by women, leaders of regulatory bodies face an unprecedented set of challenges to build greater financial stability. This is the only program for financial regulators at the intersection of leadership development and women's financial inclusion. It equips participants with technical and strategic know-how to create policy and leadership skills to affect change. In addition, senior officials gain the tools to sponsor women leaders, modelling an approach for building a pipeline of gender diverse talent within the institution.
